Billie's Story

In the early 2000s, Billie had one hope: to be reunited with her five children. Battling a drug addiction, she turned to Door to Hope for help. What she found was more than just a recovery program—she found inspiration and support for her whole family.

After seven months in recovery, Billie was reunited with her children. "I was desperate. I was wanting to rebuild a relationship with my children," remembers Billie. Through MCSTART, a First 5 Monterey County funded program at Door to Hope, she was connected to a team of providers that helped her begin to nurture strong parent-child bonds with her children and understand their unique needs. Services included therapy, home visits, and doctor appointments.

"You don't get a book on how to raise children. But Door to Hope and MCSTART were really that book for me. I was able to get support for my children mentally and emotionally. They gave me a bunch of tools. I finally figured out the needs of my little kids."

Today, Billie's children are in high school and young adults. She reflects, "Each one of them is of course different, so I've learned throughout the years that when one kid is going through something, they need more of you." Two of her children have gone on to serve in the armed forces and her youngest is an honor roll student. Her connection to Door to Hope is still strong and has come full circle. Billie has now worked for the agency for over 10 years helping families like hers find the support services they need after completing their recovery programs.

Early Childhood Collaboratives

In 2016, we asked families about raising young children in Monterey County. Many local parents and caregivers asked for ways to understand the unique needs of their child and family. They were also looking for support in accessing parenting information and services. Hearing these needs, First 5 Monterey County funded the Early Childhood Collaboratives.

Any family with children from the prenatal stage through age 5 living in Monterey County can connect with local Early Childhood Collaboratives.

Collaboratives welcome families and a care coordinator helps them navigate services. This includes developmental screening as well as parenting help and information. When needed, families can also receive referrals for other community services and resources.

Collaborative services for families may include:

- Connections to Local Resources
- Parent-Child Playgroups
- Parenting Classes
- Care Coordination
- Home Visiting
- Parent Dialogue Groups
- Counseling
- Referrals to Additional Services

Jessica's Story

Like many moms, Jessica wants the best for her family. After her daughters Mary Jane and Melanie were born, Jessica suffered from depression. Raised by a single mom, and a single mom herself, Jessica wondered if her girls would be better off without her.

Jessica bravely took the steps to look for resources in the community and connected to the First 5 Monterey County funded Early Childhood Collaborative New Possibilities through GoKids, Inc. She participated in parenting groups, playgroups, developmental screening, and therapy. New Possibilities also connected her to other local services. Through it all, one person was there for her—Alejandra, a care coordinator for New Possibilities. Alejandra helps families navigate and find the right services. Jessica remembers, "There are certain people that make you feel important and she was one of those people who listened to me. She was there after hours, even on Saturdays. That showed me that I am important."

Now Jessica is able to spend more quality time talking and playing with her girls, taking them to the park, gardening, and going on daily walks. She feels that she has a better understanding of who her children are and how to support them.

"All of these socializations have helped me out a lot. This wasn't just good for them, this was good for me. Now I have a voice for myself, I am able to speak for what they need."

Mary Jane started Kindergarten this year. Jessica speaks with pride about her development and readiness for school after participating in First 5 funded services. "I felt proud that my daughter was independent and understood what was going on. She was ready to go," she beams. "I'm really grateful that these programs actually exist. There are families, especially single moms, that need these. If you need the help, go ask for the help."

Let's Raise Monterey County Together!

While First 5 funding is declining, needs for support and services continue to increase.

Since fiscal year 2000/01, Proposition 10 revenues—the tobacco tax that funds First 5—have decreased by nearly 43%.

First 5 Monterey County Proposition 10 Revenues

Financial data based on First 5 Monterey County Audited Financials. The good news is that smoking has decreased. The challenging news is that the decline in revenue has impacted our ability to support children and families with First 5 funded services.

Lack of funding is the biggest barrier to achieving our vision.

Early childhood and prevention services have never been adequately funded. Support during the early years can change the trajectory of a lifetime while boosting our local communities. Affordable housing, employment, child care, and workforce development directly impact children's lives. It takes partnerships and local investments to find solutions.

Let's put our money where our hearts are.

Prioritize funding for early childhood, so all of Monterey County's children can thrive.
